Manager's Commentary

September was a good month for the fund in absolute terms and against its benchmark index, reaching +0,40% compared to +0,36%. Credit remained stable, with a slight widening of the spread against governments at the beginning of the month, which eventually stabilized. We have seen a slight flattening of 10 points in the German curve, but we believe that the pressure to steep the European curves will continue, meaning that in the best-case scenario the curve will remain steep and in the worst-case scenario it will worsen by 15 or 30 points by the end of the year.

On the credit side, the portfolio remained neutral in terms of spread due to high valuations. During the month, we remained cautious in our trading, monitoring the current political situation in France. In the US, we have continued with a reduced weighting following the August employment data and currently maintain full hedging of dollar-denominated assets to avoid EUR/USD currency risk.
